PREFACE.

The present volume is the second edition of the "Record of the Streets, Alleys, Places, etc., in the City of Boston," and the fourth publication of it in any form. Two of its previous appearances were as appendices to the annual reports of the Street Laying-Out Department for the years 1894 and 1896. The edition here presented consists of additions, corrections and amplifications of the issue of 1902, and was made in accordance with the following order:

IN BOARD OF ALDERMEN, October 18, 1909.

Ordered: That the Board of Street Commissioners be authorized to prepare and publish a revised list of streets, courts and places in the City of Boston, similar to that published by the said Board in 1901, the expense of publishing said book to be charged to the appropriation of City Council, incidental expenses. Said edition to consist of 2,500 copies, 1,500 of which shall be distributed under the direction of the Committee on Printing, and 1,000 copies to be reserved for sale to the public by the City Messenger on terms to be fixed by the Mayor.

Passed. Sent down for concurrence. November 4 came up concurred. Approved by the Mayor, November 16, 1909.

It may not be out of place to here give a brief statement regarding the origin of this work, the source from which the material was gathered, the fundamental base upon which it rests, and the process of evolution through a period of 200 years of the modest first list of the town ways to the pretentious Record of the Streets of 1910.

We have, unfortunately, very little specific information regarding the streets during the early colonial period, there having been no list of them prepared, and such knowledge as we do possess regarding them during that time has been gathered at random from the various early record books of the town. There is little doubt, however, that some of the thoroughfares and many of the minor ways shown in the first list published are identical with those that had been in use from the earliest days of the settlement, and from this list we can proceed to the present time with some fair degree of accuracy. Abundant evidence exists that there was much attention given by the early inhabitants to these ancient ways, although it would scarcely be so assumed from the spider web like manner in which they appear to have been allowed to develop; yet this very deviousness did but add character and picturesqueness to the quaint old town. Perhaps during the entire colonial period scarcely a way was worthy of the name street; yet in those ways, lanes and by-paths, crooked, narrow and insignificant though they may have been, there was from the beginning a vital interest taken; measures were adopted to prevent encroachments, others were established to promote and enforce cleanliness in them, and precaution was taken to prevent the occurrence and spread of fire. Only six years after the date of the settlement we find upon the old record books the following order or ordinance:

The 4th of the 8th month, October, 1636.

Att a meeting this day, it was agreed and ordered that from this day there shall noe house at all be built in this towne neere unto any of the streets or laynes therein, but with the advise and consent of the overseers of the townes occassions for the avoyding of disorderly building to the inconvenience of streets and laynes, and for the more comely and Commodious ordering of them upon the forfeyture for every house built Contrarie to this order, of such some as the ouerseers shall see fitting under the sume of Xlb. [Boston Town Records, 1634–1660, City Doc. No. 46 for year 1881, p. 9.]

From this time forward a multitude of votes, orders, etc., regarding the old ways appear upon the town books in both the Selectmen's Records and Town Records. There came a day, however, when to every good citizen desirous of observing order it was evident that there should be some comprehensive list of these streets and ways prepared, that they not only might receive official recognition, but that there should be applied to them some designation by which they might in future be known, and with that end in view there appeared in the town warrant an article bearing on the subject, which resulted in the passage of the following order:

In Town Meeting, Septembr 22th. 1701.

It being represented to the Towne that as yet there hath been no Sufficient record made of the breadth of the Severall Streets and Highways belonging to the Town.

It is Voted that the Select men do cause the same to be measured and make report thereof to the next Town Meeting. [Boston Town Records, 1700–1728, City Doc. 137 for 1882, p. 24.]

It does not appear that the instructions given the Selectmen by these votes were carried into effect until several years later (1708), when the following order prepared by them was acted upon by the town:

May the 3d, 1708.

Ordered that the Streets Lanes and Alleys of this Town as they are now bounded and named, be accordingly recorded in the Town Booke w^{ch} are as followeth: viz^{t}. [Boston Town Records, 1700–1728, City Doc. 137 for 1882, pp. 49–54.]

The list contained 110 names, and an order for printing it was passed at the next meeting of the Selectmen, as follows:

May the 10th, 1708.

Ordered that the names & bounds of the Streets, Lanes & Alley^{s} of the Town be forthwith Transcribed & five hundred of them printed. [Selectmen's Records, 1701–1715, City Doc. No. 75 for the year 1884, p. 73.]

This was published as a Broadside under the following title: "The Names of the Streets, Lanes & Alleys within the Town of Boston, in New England. Printed by Bartholomew Green in Newbury street. Sold by the Booksellers, 1708, Price 3d."

The size of the sheet was 13$\frac{3}{8}$ inches by 18 inches, and it appeared during the week of May 27, 1708. (See Sewall papers, Vol. II., p. 225.)

There is an original copy preserved in the library of the Massachusetts Historical Society, and another in the Boston Public Library.

This list, then, is the first comprehensive knowledge we have of the town ways, and is taken as the starting point for the investigation into the changes which have been made in the nomenclature of our highways, as beyond that we cannot go with any degree of certainty. In some cases, however, notably that of Sudbury street, there is sufficient authentic evidence to warrant an earlier date, and in all such cases the earliest date is given.*

While no list of the town ways appeared during its life under the Colonial government, the period immediately following, under the Provincial government, is favored with two, one being the official list of 1708, previously mentioned, and the other a subsequent unofficial list which appeared in the Vade Mecum which was published under the following title:

Vade Mecum for America; or a companion for traders and travellers. Boston, N. E., Printed by S. Kneeland and T. Green, for D. Henchman and T. Hancock, 1732.

*The fac-simile inserted as a frontispiece to this volume is reproduced in actual size from an original copy in the possession of the Boston Public Library.

This publication made its appearance on April 24, 1732. There is an original copy in the possession of the Bostonian Society at their rooms in the Old State House and another copy in the library of Harvard College.

This list shows that changes in the names of the old ways had begun to be made and that new ways were laid out. Changes of a various nature continued to be made throughout a period of more than forty years; then came the Revolution and the consequent repudiation of many of the old names and the substitution of colloquialisms, factors which in the interests of harmony and order brought about a demand for the recognition of these ways under some official designation and resulted eventually in the passage of the following order:

In town meeting, March 10, 1788, it was "Voted that the Selectmen be a Committee to give Names to Streets & to Record the same Agreeably to said Articles in the Warrant," and the following report was adopted in town meeting held July 4, 1788: "Conformably to a Vote of the Town passed the 10th of March 1788, Impowering the Selectmen 'to give names to such Streets as have gone by different Names since the revolution and to record the same in the Town Books, as Also the Names of such Streets as have not been recorded'—the following Names given by the Selectmen to such Streets — are here accordingly Recorded & the Names of the Other Streets — may be seen in the Town Book N°. 2 page 293." (Boston Town Records, Book No. 8, p. 81. See City Doc. 101, p. 178, for the year 1903.)

This list constitutes a supplement to the original list printed in 1708, and is the second official one that had been prepared. A number of changes in the names of several of the principal thoroughfares were made, noticeably the substitution of American and Republican names for English or royal ones.

In 1800 a second unofficial list was published under the following title: "Names of the Streets, Lanes and Alleys in the Town of Boston. Printed by Benjamin Edes & Sons, Boston, 1800. The town lies N. N. E. and S. S. W. ☞ The streets are reckoned in order from the Southward."

In 1803 a list of the streets appeared in the Boston Directory for that year. This was the fourth issue of that publication, but the first to print a street list.

From this date (1803) the directory was published intermittingly to 1825, and from that date it has appeared annually to the present time, and with each issue, as a part of the volume, there has been included a list of streets. (For information in detail regarding the street list contained in the Boston Directory see Record Commissioners' Report No. 10, City Doc. 150 for 1886, p. 166.)

In 1817 there appeared a third unofficial list of the streets in Shaw's "History of Boston, 1817."

On June 9, 1834, a third official list of the streets was reported to the city government by a committee of the Board of Aldermen, which was presented in three parts:

1. A list showing a combination of the original list made up in 1708, together with the supplementary list of 1788, eliminating, however, such streets as had appeared in either but had previous to 1834 been abandoned.

2. Streets, lanes and alleys which had been in use for a long period and had been considered public, but of which no official record of laying out could be found, with an order providing for their formal acceptance, which was adopted.

3. A list of streets laid out and named from 1788 to 1834. This list contained the South Boston streets. (City Records, Vol. 12, p. 179.)

These three lists combined gave a complete list of the public streets to the year 1834.

On Sept. 15, 1834, a committee of the Board of Aldermen presented, with an order for adoption, a list of names which had by them been selected for the new streets at the southerly part of the city (the Neck). (City Records, Vol. 12, p. 3.)

On Oct. 17, 1842, a fifth official list of streets prepared by the Committee on Laying Out and Widening Streets was submitted to the Board of Aldermen and adopted. This list contained the names of the several streets which had been laid out, discontinued or named since the date of the last report of the committee on the subject in the year 1834. (Municipal Record, Vol. 20, p. 297.)

In 1860 the Board of Aldermen authorized the preparation of an index to the plans contained in the records in the Suffolk Registry of Deeds. It was compiled with great care by Mr. Francis Lincoln, who found it necessary first to prepare a list of the streets, with the various names they had borne and the changes that had been made in them from time to time.

This list of streets was preserved and placed on file in the registry and has been of great assistance to lawyers and conveyancers.

An order was presented to the Board of Aldermen on April 13, 1868, providing for changes in the names of a number of streets in Boston proper and Roxbury, which was intended to eliminate the confusion caused by the duplication of names, there being a number of streets in Roxbury (recently annexed) bearing the same names as streets in Boston proper. The order was passed. (Municipal Records, Vol. 46, pp. 286–408, City Doc. No. 49, 1868.)

On Dec. 26, 1879, the Joint Standing Committee on Ordinances submitted to the Common Council a report consisting of a statement of the manner in which the streets of the city had been named and their names changed, together with the reasons of the committee for limiting their research into the history of the streets to the period subsequent to 1708, and explanation of the difficulty of the work and the process by which the committee had arrived at the result, which appeared as Appendix J in their report. (Doc. No. 119 for the year 1879.) The report says: "In the preparation of 'Appendix J' much valuable data has been collected and put in form for convenient reference. If the list is corrected and revised as new information is obtained or errors discovered, it will in time furnish a tolerably correct history of our highways." The list of streets prepared by Mr. Francis Lincoln in 1860 is embodied in this list.

This was undoubtedly the most complete list of streets that had yet appeared, but, unfortunately, it was confined exclusively to the limits of Boston proper. A period of ten years had elapsed since Roxbury and Dorchester had been annexed; West Roxbury, Charlestown and Brighton had also become component parts of the municipality, and great confusion soon arose in connection with the duplication of the street names.

As a measure towards eliminating this annoyance the following order was introduced:

IN BOARD OF ALDERMEN, July 12, 1880.

Order for the Street Commissioners to report a scheme for reducing the duplicate names of highways, the expense for advertising and printing to be charged to incidentals.

In accordance with the above order the Street Commissioners on Dec. 27, 1880, sent the following communication to the City Council: "Report of the Street Commissioners on the Nomenclature of the City's Streets," which was a list of the public streets in different parts of the city with similiar names, and "the title which the Commissioners have suggested to themselves as suitable for such of those streets as in their opinion should be renamed and appended to them." Placed on file. (See City Doc. No. 141 for the year 1880.)

During the same year (1880) the Board of Registrars of Voters published a list of streets under the following title: "List of Streets, Avenues, Courts, Places, Etc.," also showing the numbers and divisions of those extending through more than one ward. This list was similar to those found in the contemporaneous directories; no reference was made to their history or mention made of obsolete ways. In 1888 there was a reprint of this list, corrected to date.

The list of streets prepared by the Committee on Ordinances, published in Doc. No. 119 of 1879 and then commonly called "Appendix J," had been so well received and its merits and value had become so obvious that there came to be a demand for its republication in an amplified form so as to embrace the entire territory of the city, and to that purpose the following order was introduced in the City Council:

IN BOARD OF ALDERMEN, October 31, 1881.

Ordered, That the Committee on Ordinances be directed to furnish the material for City Document No. 119 of 1879, relating to the nomenclature of streets which shall embrace those portions of the city not included in said Document No. 119, together with a statement of the laying out, acceptance, discontinuance, etc., of the several streets of the city.

This order, together with one transferring the sum of $1,500 from the Reserve Fund for this purpose, was passed and approved by the Mayor Dec. 9, 1881, and again the following year, Dec. 21, 1882.

On Dec. 27, 1882, Mr. James R. Carret, the well known conveyancer, was engaged to superintend the compilation of this list. He agreed "to prepare for the City of Boston a record of the names of the streets in said city as found in its records and in the records of the several cities and towns which have become a part of said city by annexation, said record to be alphabetically arranged, and to embody such information in relation to names of streets in said city as said Carret may obtain from other sources."

A number of assistants were employed by him upon this work, which continued over a period of more than ten years but never assumed definite shape.

In 1893 the Board of Street Commissioners prepared a list of streets showing the dates of laying out and the date of change in name of any streets which had taken place from the time of the establishment of the commission, Jan. 21, 1871, to Jan. 21, 1894, inclusive. This list was published as an appendix to their annual report for the year 1893. (See City Doc. No. 35 for the year 1894.)

Inquiries by conveyancers, operators in real estate and others were repeatedly made regarding the status, etc., of many of the streets situated in the outlying territory; the absence of definite knowledge regarding them frequently became embarrassing and the Board became impressed with the fact that it was necessary that something should soon be done to provide a record of these ways for the use of the department.

Mr. Carret was interviewed in regard to the progress of the work in that line which he had undertaken in 1882, and it was found that diligent research for a period covering a number of years had been made in the records of the several cities and towns, and the lists enumerated below had been used to much advantage:

List of streets prepared by the city of Roxbury.

List of streets prepared by the town of Dorchester.

List of streets prepared by the city of Charlestown.

List of streets prepared by the town of Brighton.

The above named lists are on file in the office of the City Clerk of Boston.

Much time had been spent in the Registries of Deeds for Suffolk, Norfolk and Middlesex Counties, and the files of all the public record offices had been carefully examined; maps, atlases, the various local histories and other authorities had been consulted, and a vast amount of material and data had been collected but never put in shape for publication; the money appropriated in 1882 to carry on the work having been exhausted, and with little prospect of a further appropriation being made, the work had come to an abrupt end. What Mr. Carret had accomplished was found to be remarkably complete, but it was regretted that there was little prospect of his finishing it. He was reluctant to continue it in any event, having found the work of greater magnitude and more perplexing than he had anticipated. The Board of Street Commissioners finally decided to utilize the material gathered by him and his assistants and to prepare the work themselves.

Mr. J. H. Jenkins, Mr. John W. Morrison and Mr. Irwin C. Cromack were employed by the Board to work in collaboration in the preparation of a list of the ways of the city, to be published without delay.

These gentlemen, with long terms of service with the city in departments intimately connected with the laying out of its streets, were possessed of a special knowledge regarding them and were eminently fitted and qualified to carry this important undertaking to a successful and satisfactory completion.

After much laborious and perplexing work in collecting and arranging the data collected by their predecessor the list assumed shape, and the first complete record of the streets, courts, places, etc., of the entire city was ready to be presented to the public. Its appearance was made as "Appendix B" in the annual report of the Street Laying-Out Department for the year 1894. (City Doc. No. 35 for 1895.)

Although this list fell far short of reaching a state of perfection it was decidedly superior to anything of a similar nature that had yet appeared, and the fact that it gave mention of and some historical record for each and every present or ancient way in any part of the city was a meritorious feature not possessed by any work resembling it.

This list was followed the following year, 1896, by a list prepared by the Board of Election Commissioners.

The redivision of the wards of the city in 1895, under authority of chapter 417 of the Acts of the Legislature of 1893 (the first made to become operative since 1875), with the radical changes in both ward and precinct lines, made it imperative for departmental use that the list of streets prepared by the Registrars of Voters and published in 1888 should be revised. This was consequently done and a limited edition printed in 1896, under the following title: "List of Streets, Avenues, Places, Etc." This list also showed the numbers and divisions of those extending through more than one ward or precinct, together with the location of hotels, apartment houses, etc.

As previously stated this was simply a revision of the list published in 1888, corrected to date.

During the same year, 1896, the "List of Streets, Courts, Places, Etc., in Boston," published as "Appendix B" in the report of the Street Laying-Out Department for the year 1894, was revised by Mr. Cromack, one of the compilers of the original edition, and many additions and corrections made.

An innovation in this edition was the introduction of the reference to all plans showing any official action on the part of the city in connection with the naming, laying out, widening or discontinuance of any of its highways since 1851 — information which later proved to be very useful and valuable. This revised edition was again included in the annual report of the Street Laying-Out Department, this time in that for the year 1896. (See City Doc. No. 30 for the year 1897.)

The two editions of this "List of Streets, Courts, Places, Etc.," published by the Street Laying-Out Department had each been very limited and naturally speedily became exhausted, while the demand continued. Important changes were constantly taking place, and many lawyers and conveyancers were without copies of what had been printed and there was a great deal of urgency for its republication.

The Street Commissioners had already twice published this most expensive list and could hardly see their way clear to present the public with another edition. Eventually, however, the matter was brought to the attention of the city government, resulting in the introduction of the following order:

In Board of Aldermen, July 8, 1901.

Ordered, That the Board of Street Commissioners be requested to prepare and publish a revised list of streets, courts and places in the City of Boston, similar to that published by said Board in 1896, the expense of publishing said list to be charged to the appropriation for City Council, incidental expenses.

Passed. Sent down for concurrence. September 27 came up concurred. Approved by the Mayor September 30, 1901.

The compliance with this order was something more of an undertaking than was that of the revision of the first issue of this list. An interval of six years having elapsed between the date of that publication and the introduction of this order, during which time many public and private improvements had been made and frequent official action in connection with the streets had occurred, it can be readily inferred that the volume of additional matter to be introduced into this new list was of no little consequence.

Under authority of chapter 298 of the Acts of the Legislature of 1898 the alleys had now found a standing in the nomenclature of the city ways, and under authority of the above mentioned act and that of chapter 323 of the Acts of the Legislature of 1891 and amendments thereto many of them had become public, and the information to be inserted regarding them alone was of much importance and interest.

The work in connection with the revision of this list was again undertaken by Mr. Cromack and by Mr. William H. Macmann. The latter, having long been employed in the Engineering Department of the city, was familiar with the records of the present streets, and had acquired much valuable knowledge of the old ways, their history being a subject to which he had given much attention and study.

The publication appeared now for the first time, independent of any city document, under the title, "A Record of the Streets, Alleys, Places, Etc., in the City of Boston."

In an appendix was printed a description of the boundary line of the city as well as those of the wards and the aldermanic districts, also a codification by the Corporation Counsel (Mr. Andrew J. Bailey) of the legislative acts in force Jan. 1, 1902, authorizing the laying out and construction of public works in the City of Boston and making assessments therefor.

On May 1, 1906, a list of streets was published under the following title: "Boston's Streets, also its Avenues, Courts, Places, Etc.," showing the numbers and divisions of those extending through more than one ward or precinct, together with the location of hotels, apartment houses, institutions, hospitals, etc. It was prepared by the Board of Street Commissioners of the City of Boston, in accordance with the following order:

Ordered, That the Street Laying-Out Department be requested to prepare an edition of fifteen hundred copies of a list of streets, avenues, courts, places, etc., by wards and precincts, showing numbers and divisions of those extending through more than one ward or precinct, together with the location of hotels, apartment houses, etc., the same to be printed as a public document, the expense of same to be charged to the appropriation for incidental expenses, City Council.

Order passed in concurrence April 9, 1906.

The present issue, consisting of the "Record of the Streets, Alleys, Places, Etc., in the City of Boston," was prepared, as has been previously stated, in accordance with an order of the City Council, approved Nov. 16, 1909. An interval of eight years, nearly a decade, has elapsed since its last appearance, and in its revision the list has undergone many changes. All the above mentioned lists have many times been consulted, as well as other sources of official information, and no pains have been spared to make the record of each street or way as perfect as possible. Numerous grade crossing acts of the Legislature, with the incidental changes in lines and grades of the streets in connection with them, was a source of much additional matter. An innovation has been made in the introduction of street numbers, somewhat more specifically locating the ways. A street is now described from the number on the terminating way at the point of its intersection, an addition which will doubtless appeal to many.

Another notable feature is the introduction into the list of the bridges of every description within the city's limits, with a brief history of each, which it is to be hoped a future edition may amplify and perfect.

The revision of the old list and the preparation of this volume was again intrusted to Mr. Cromack and Mr. Macmann, and the thorough manner in which the previous revision was made should be a sufficient guaranty of the quality of the work to be found in the present edition.

The date of this publication is a singularly appropriate one, as it almost precisely marks the passage of two centuries since the appearance of that little first list of 110 names in 1708.

The Board considers this list to be the most complete and satisfactory "Record of Streets" that they have yet had the pleasure to present.

LIST OF STREETS, COURTS, PLACES, ETC., IN BOSTON.

Back Bay, B. and Rox.; the territory lying between the Providence Division of the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. on the south, the Charles River Basin on the north, and from Arlington street to Massachusetts avenue; all of this territory is "made land"; originally it was a cove or an arm of Charles river (called Roxbury Flats, on Bonner's map of 1722) which at high water spread inland from the foot of the Common, along the westerly side of Pleasant street to Washington street and thence along the adjacent shore and that of the Neck to Brookline. Into this bay from Roxbury projected a salt marsh peninsula known as Gravelly Point. The first improvement made in this locality was the laying out of Charles street in 1803. In 1814 the Boston and Roxbury Mill Corporation was authorized, under a legislative act, to build a dam (now Beacon street) from the end of Beacon street near the Common to Sewall's Point in Brookline and a cross-dam (later Parker, now Hemenway street) from Gravelly Point to the main dam. The Mill-dam was open for travel July 2, 1821. The building of the cross-dam converted that portion of the bay in which is located the present Fens into what was called the "Full Basin," and the whole of what is now covered by our present Back Bay proper, east of Massachusetts avenue, into the "Receiving" or "Empty Basin." The water power operations not being so successful as anticipated, the basins gradually fell into disuse, and their condition was such, that in 1849 the City Council declared the Back Bay a nuisance. In 1852 its condition was investigated by a committee of the General Court, and it was eventually decided to fill them, and on Dec. 11, 1856, was signed what was known as the "tri-partite agreement" by the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, the City of Boston and the Boston Water Power Co., under which it was proposed to fill the "Empty Basin" (see Suffolk Deeds, Lib. 719, fol. 30); on Dec. 31, 1864, a second and final indenture was made by the same parties, which was known as the "New tri-partite agreement" (see Suffolk Deeds, Lib. 854, fol. 241), under which the work was finally completed. The work of filling the Back Bay commenced June 15, 1855, and was finished about 1886. The streets were filled to grade 18.00 (city base), and lots were left at grade 12.00. Area filled by the Commonwealth, about 108 acres; area filled by private parties and corporations, about 462 acres. (See Harbor and Land Commissioners' Report for 1881.) By an order of the City Council, dated Feb. 12, 1878, land and flats located in the former "Full Basin" were, under authority of chapter 185 of the Acts of 1875, taken for the present Back Bay Fens. (See Suffolk Deeds, Lib. 1404, fol. 217, 226, 230.) Work of filling for Back Bay Fens commenced March 11, 1878. See Suffolk Deeds, Lib. 315, fol. 278, 284; Lib. 710, fol. 11; Lib. 859, fol. 291; Lib. 863, fol. 95; Lib. 870, fol. 216; Lib. 979, fol. 143; Lib. 1077, fol. 37, 38; Lib. 1378, fol. 170; Lib. 1451, fol. 82; Lib. 1478, fol. 156.

R., southwest, parallel with the railroad to the water; formerly from Austin avenue at Bennington street, southwest, to flats across Saratoga street, parallel with the railroad; laid out from Saratoga street to Ashley avenue (now street) under name of Beachmont avenue, April 12, 1887; laying out void on account of the Railroad Commissioners not approving the laying out at grade over tracks of the B., R. B. & L. R. R.; from the railroad to Austin avenue included in land of said railroad. L 2042, L 2043, L 2044.

Butler place, B., 1886; from 144 Prince street, southwest, near Lafayette avenue.

Butler row, B.; Chatham row, erroneously so called in petition of Mace Tisdale et al., asking that the way may be called Chatham row.

Butler row, B.; from 100 State street, northerly, then easterly along the northerly line of the estates facing State street, to Chatham row; formerly from Merchants row (No. 11) easterly about 214 feet to the capsill of an ancient wharf (Belcher's), then southerly to a passageway 12 feet wide (this passageway widened to 20 feet constitutes a part of the present Butler row). Butler's row was laid out by Peter Butler, and was the way leading from Merchants row to Spear's wharf; the name was derived from the row of wooden buildings which abutted upon the way, and which were known as Butler's row (Suffolk Deeds, Dec. 21, 1714, Lib. 29, fol. 85; Nov. 12, 1720, Lib. 35, fol. 11; Record Commissioners' Report, Vol. 29, p. 235, March 4, 1715); referred to in depositions and on plan by Alexander Orrock as to conditions existing in 1783 (Suffolk Deeds, Lib. 436, fol. 271; Lib. 580, fol. 175); April 23, 1832, Butler's row discontinued in accordance with report of committee of Feb. 25, 1828, viz.: "That no buildings shall be erected within 20 feet of the north line of the estates now bounding northerly on a passageway running parallel to State street, whereby that passageway may be widened whenever an agreement shall be made by the proprietors abutting upon the same, to 20 feet; and also on condition that previous to said discontinuance a lot of land bounding at least 18 feet on Chatham street and at least 18 feet on said last mentioned passageway, and containing at least 1,800 feet, shall be conveyed to the city with a clear title and its exclusive property" (Board of Aldermen records, 1828, p. 51; 1832, p. 145); by the terms of this agreement Butler's row was moved south, its southerly line becoming coincident with the northerly line of the estates fronting on State street; Aug. 31, 1833, the City of Boston, in consideration of $4,000 to it paid by John P. Thorndike and David Greenough, released to the said Thorndike all its right, title and interest in Butler's row heretofore used as a public highway, leading from Merchants row, easterly . . . then southerly to another passageway 12 feet wide (this 12-foot passageway laid out by Peter Butler; referred to in Suffolk Deeds, Sept.16, 1718, Lib. 33, fol. 100; widened to 20 feet constitutes a part of the present Butler row); on the above date (Aug. 31, 1833) John P. Thorndike widened the northerly side from the passageway leading to State street, easterly about 132 feet, making the way between these points 20 feet wide (this widening an easement) (Suffolk Deeds, Lib. 372, fol. 13); Feb. 26, 1842, John D. Williams et al. petitioned the Mayor and Board of Aldermen to have "the ancient highway leading from Chatham street, westerly and southerly of the wooden stores on Chatham street cleaned and kept open for the public use"; the committee on laying out and widening streets reported that the way is a public way about 38 feet wide and is encumbered contrary to law; acting upon the recommendation of the committee the Board of Aldermen ordered the City Marshal to remove all obstructions (Board of Aldermen records, March 7, 1842); Hezekiah Earl, City Marshal, summoned to appear before the Court of Common Pleas the first Tuesday of January, 1843, to answer to the charge of trespass brought by William Pitts et al., the charge being that the defendant entered and destroyed the plaintiff's fence on land bounded northerly on Chatham street, 10 feet; easterly on a wooden store of the plaintiff's and extending southerly at a width of 10 feet, from Chatham street to the length of said store (this refers to Butler square (Board of Aldermen records, 1842, pp. 377, 378); upon default of the defendant the court awarded damages to the plaintiff; Nov. 23, 1904, petition to the Land Court by John T. Bradlee to have registered title to estate situate on the westerly side of Chatham row and between State street and Chatham street; March 3, 1906, indenture between John T. Bradlee and Moses Williams et al., relative to that part of Butler row between Chatham row and Butler square (Suffolk Deeds, Lib. 3110, fol. 609); March 13, 1906, decree of Land Court, registering title to land of Bradlee mentioned above (Suffolk Deeds, Lib. 3117, fol. 397); this decree includes the portion of Butler row between Chatham row and Butler square in land of Bradlee, but by terms of indenture mentioned above the way shall always remain open throughout its present length and width as shown on plan filed with the above indenture, to a height of at least 18 feet above the present surface of the paving in the middle of the way; in a communication from the Law Department to the Board of Health, dated Aug. 28, 1907, the Corporation Counsel declares that in his opinion the portion of Butler row between the easterly and westerly lines of Butler square is a private way; from this decision and that of the Land Court, and the preceding description, it is to be inferred that no part of Butler row is a public highway; before the decision of the Land Court was made the portion between Chatham row and the westerly line of Butler square was supposed to be a public street; the portion of Butler row leading northerly from State street was laid out by Peter Butler, its date is uncertain; but reference may be had (without name) to a deed of Aug. 27, 1717; in Hopkins's atlas of 1874 the way from State street to Chatham row called Butler row; in directory since 1875 called Butler's row; same in Bromley's atlas of 1884; in Bromley's atlases of 1888, 1890, 1895, 1898 and 1902, and in decision of the Land Court mentioned above, called Butler row.

*__Butler square,__ B.; from 56 Chatham street to Butler row; originally a part of Belcher's dock; the date when the dock was filled and when the way received its name is uncertain; the plan filed with the deposition of Alexander Orrock on conditions existing in 1783 (Suffolk Deeds, Lib. 436, fol. 271) shows that part of the dock now occupied by Butler row as filled; in 1818 William Pitts et al., in a plea of ejectment wherein Pitts et al. demand possession of land situated near State street, and bounded easterly on a store and other land of the plaintiffs 36 feet 6 inches southerly on a street or passageway 14 feet, westerly on a passageway 28 feet and northerly on Belcher's dock, 11 feet, decision was in favor of the town (Court of Common Pleas, Vol. 16, 1818, p. 485); case appealed and in default of plaintiffs the case was decided in favor of the town (Vol. 6, 1819, p. 41, and plan in Engineer's office, Vol. 2, p. 2); in deed dated Aug. 31, 1833, Butler square is mentioned as "a way anciently known as Butler's dock" (Suffolk Deeds, Lib. 372, fol. 19); in the case of William Pitts et al. vs. Hezekiah Earl, City Marshal, brought in Court of Common Pleas, January term, 1843 (p. 156), to recover damages to fence on land bounded northerly on Chatham street 10 feet, easterly on a wooden store of the plaintiffs and extending southerly at a width of 10 feet from Chatham street to the length of said store, the City Marshal defaulted and the case was given to the plaintiffs; in Hopkins's atlas of 1874 called Butler square; same in Bromley's atlas of 1884; in Bromley's atlases of 1888, 1890, 1895, 1898, 1902, called Butler's square; in decree of the Land Court registering title of John T. Bradlee, and dated March 13, 1906, the way is called Butler square.

*Great bridge, Bri. and Camb., 1662; what is commonly known as North Harvard street bridge, from North Harvard street in Brighton across Charles river to Boylston street in Cambridge, Dec. 7, 1635. "It is further ordered that there shall be a sufficient bridge made down to low-water mark on this side of the river, and a broad ladder [set up] on the farther side the river, for convenience [of] landing," etc. (This ferry was at the foot of present Dunster street, east of point where the Great bridge was later built.) On Nov. 10, 1656, the inhabitants agreed to pay £200 towards building a bridge; Feb. 4, 1659–60, the question of building the bridge was again considered and debated, and former vote confirmed; the structure was probably completed before March 23, 1662–63, when it was ordered "that the bridge be laid in oil and lead, provided that it exceed not £40 charge to the town"; this bridge was larger than any previously erected in the colony; from the first it was called "Great bridge" which is still its legal designation. By order of the General Court the bridge was made a toll bridge, Oct. 12, 1670; on Jan. 11, 1687–88, the tolls were removed, the expense of maintaining the bridge "be defrayed and borne as followeth: (that is to say) two sixths part thereof by the town of Cambridge, one sixth part by the Village [Newton] and three sixths part at the public charge of the county of Middlesex"; Newton was exempted from liability by order of the General Court, May 4, 1781. When Lexington was incorporated, March 20, 1712–13, and West Cambridge (now Arlington), Feb. 27, 1807, they were required with Cambridge to pay their proportional part of the expense of maintaining the bridge. By order of the General Court, March 24, 1860, they were released from that obligation; the General Court on June 22, 1734, "Voted that three thousand acres of the unappropriated lands of the Province be and hereby are granted to the towns of Cambridge, Newton and Lexington to enable them forever hereafter at their own cost and charge to keep, amend and repair, the great bridge over Charles river in Cambridge; the land to be laid out in these several parts in equal proportion to each of the said towns"; by an act of the Legislature of 1838, certain people of Brighton were authorized to put a draw in the bridge; by an act passed March 11, 1862, the city of Cambridge and the town of Brighton were "authorized and required to rebuild the Great Bridge over Charles river" the expense to be borne "in proportion to the respective valuation of said city and town"; the act also fixed the boundary line in the river between the city and town, and that thereafter each municipality should maintain its half of the bridge at its own expense. This bridge formed a link in the Great road leading from Boston over the Neck to Roxbury, thence through Washington street in that village (now Roxbury street, Tremont street and Huntington avenue) and through street of same name in Brookline, Harvard avenue, Cambridge street and North Harvard street in Brighton, across the Great bridge to Harvard College, and beyond to Middlesex and Essex counties. For over 150 years after the settlement of Boston this road and bridge was the only outlet, except by ferry, to the country lying northward. The planks of the bridge were removed by the Continentals, April 19, 1775, to prevent the British from marching to Lexington and Concord, but Lord Percy discovered and replaced them. See Mass. Col. Roxbury canal, Rox., 1796; from the northeasterly side of Massachusetts avenue, midway between Albany street and Southampton street, to South Bay; formerly canal, 50 feet in width, extending from the wharf at Lamb's dam (just north of Northampton street) nearly to Eustis street, directly back of the burying ground. It was built by the "Proprietors of Roxbury Canal," who were incorporated in 1796 for the purpose of opening a communication by water upon the easterly side of the town of Roxbury, to extend into Roxbury; and under their charter straightened and excavated a creek which ran through Lamb's dam farm and the marsh adjoining, and constructed what was known as Roxbury canal. A portion of the former boundary line between Boston and Roxbury formerly ran through the middle of this canal. The portion lying south of Lamb's dam was discontinued and filled in 1820, the direction of the remaining portion was diverted and a new portion dug at that time, having its terminus at a point about 50 feet east of Harrison avenue, midway between Northampton street and Massachusetts avenue. On June 30, 1868, Albany street in Roxbury was extended across Roxbury canal and Roxbury Town wharf or landing place to Northampton street. A bridge was built across the canal, within the lines of Albany street, by an order of the Boston City Council approved, Oct. 2, 1868; the bridge was completed and open for travel early in 1869. The canal was declared a nuisance, and under chapter 217 of the Acts of the Legislature the city was authorized to fill the territory bounded by Harrison avenue, East Chester park (now Massachusetts avenue), Swett (now Southampton) street and Northampton street, which included a portion of the canal. The filling was begun in 1878; the bridge was probably removed in 1879, and the canal south of Massachusetts avenue completely filled in 1880. TERRITORIAL LIMITS OF THE CITY.

Territory and corporate powers of Boston. 1821, 110, § 1. 1854, 448, § 1. 1 Pick. 375. 1 Met. 473. 171 Mass. 586, 591.

Section 1. The inhabitants of the territory which, on the fourth day of March in the year eighteen hundred and twenty-two was comprised within the limits of the municipal corporation then known as the town of Boston, and which, on said day, became the territory of the city of Boston, and the inhabitants of the territory subsequently annexed, as hereinafter described, are, and shall continue to be, one body politic, in fact and in name, under the style and denomination of THE CITY OF BOSTON: and, as such, shall have, exercise and enjoy all the rights, immunities, powers and privileges, and shall be subject to all the duties and obligations now incumbent upon, and appertaining to, said city as a municipal corporation. Such annexed territory consists of Roxbury. 1867, 359, § 1.

Clause 1. All the territory formerly comprising the city of Roxbury in the county of Norfolk.

Dorchester. 1803, 111. 1834, 102. 1869, 349, § 1.

Clause 2. All the territory formerly comprising the town of Dorchester in said county. Thompson's Island shall be exempt from taxation so long as it shall be appropriated to the use of the Farm and Trade School, or to any public charity.

West Roxbury. 1872, 197. 1873, 314, § 1.

Clause 3. All the territory formerly comprising the town of West Roxbury in said county.

Charlestown. 1873, 286, § 1.

Clause 4. All the territory formerly comprising the city of Charlestown in the county of Middlesex.

Brighton. 1873, 303, § 1.

Clause 5. All the territory formerly comprising the town of Brighton in said county.

Brookline. 1870, 374, §§ 1, 3. 1874, 220, §§ 1, 7.

Clause 6. All the territory formerly in the town of Brookline, in the county of Norfolk, situated northerly of the southerly line of Brighton avenue, and that part of said town of Brookline contained within the line described as follows: beginning at a point in the centre of the channel of Charles river on the boundary line between the town of Brookline and the city of Cambridge where the westerly line at St. Mary's street, in the town of Brookline, extended in a northerly direction would intersect the said boundary line; thence running southwardly by the westerly line of said St. Mary's street extended to the southerly line of Brighton avenue; thence continuing in the same direction by the westerly line of St. Mary's street to the northerly line of Ivy street; thence turning a little and running southeasterly by the southwesterly line of St. Mary's street, and by the continuation of the same to the boundary line between Boston and Brookline in the centre of the channel of Muddy river; thence easterly following said boundary line to the present boundary line in the centre of the channel of Charles river; thence by the centre of said channel of Charles river to the point of beginning. All paupers who may have gained a settlement in said town of Brookline by a settlement gained or derived within said last named territory shall be relieved or supported by the city of Boston in the same manner as if they had a legal settlement therein. But the provisions of this section shall not be construed to divest or deprive the town of Brookline of any legal rights of drainage which it possessed on the fourth day of November in the year eighteen hundred and seventy or on the eighth day of May in the year eighteen hundred and seventy-four, nor of any power or authority conferred upon it by chapter seventy-one of the acts of the year eighteen hundred and sixty-seven.

Property rights in annexed territory. 1867, 359, § 2. 1869, 349, § 2. 1873, 286, § 2. 1873, 303, § 2. 1873, 314, § 2.

Sect. 2. All the public property formerly belonging to the cities of Charlestown and Roxbury, and the towns of Brighton, Dorchester and West Roxbury, shall continue to be vested in, and remain the property of, the city of Boston, and said city shall succeed to all the rights, claims, uses, trusts, duties, privileges and immunities of said cities and towns, and shall be liable for, and subject to, all the debts, obligations, duties, responsibilities and liabilities of said cities and towns.
